

Social and Personal

THE first german given by the Richmond German Club will be danced in the ball room of the Masonic Temple this evening, and will be an unusually brilliant affair. The hall will be arranged with palms, and in the dining room the lights will be sent in rose color. As heretofore, the debutante table will be placed in the center of the dining room, and arranged with pink flowers in their honor. William P. S. Mayo and William Palmer will lead the german, and dancing will begin promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown Ayres have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mattie Garland, to John William Newton. The wedding will take place on the evening of December 23, at the home of Mrs. Ayres on the university campus. At Knoxville, Tenn., will be a very quiet affair. Only a few relatives and intimate friends have been invited to the ceremony.

Miss Ayres is a daughter of Dr. Brown Ayres, president of the University of Tennessee, at Knoxville, and a niece of A. K. and John R. Anderson, Jr., of Richmond, and has a number of friends here. Mr. Newton is a son of Judge John D. Newman, of Somerset, Orange county, Va., and is a distinguished graduate of the Virginia Military Institute and of the law school of Washington and Lee University.

Invitations issued. Mrs. James Scott Parrish, of 923 West Franklin Street, has sent out invitations for a card party to be given Tuesday evening, December 20, complimentary to three of the season's debutantes, Misses J. L. Scott, Elsie Parrish and Miss Chalmers. The young girls are invited for 8 o'clock, and will be joined at 10 o'clock by the young men.

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Frehlinghausen De Witt have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Doree, to Jefferson Hayes Davis, the ceremony to take place on Wednesday afternoon, December 23, at 4 o'clock, in St. Stephen's Church, Colorado Springs, Col.

Visitors here. Miss Josephine Clarke, of Norfolk, is the guest of Mrs. John Munce, and has been entertained at several little dinners during her stay in Richmond the past week. Miss Clarke will return to Norfolk Wednesday.

Miss Nannie Patton will entertain at a small bridge party, Wednesday evening in honor of her house guest, Misses Lucy and Agnes Patton, of Kaufmann & Co.

Infants' and Children's Wear A Sale

to close out several assortments of this season's Coats and Caps to be offered Monday and Tuesday at considerable price reductions.

$3.00 values, $1.98; $5.00 values, $3.98; $7.50 values, $5.00; $10.00 values, $7.50.

Sale in Children's Department, Third Floor.

Lexington, Va., who have been visiting Mrs. Weston, on West Franklin Street, are now the guests of Miss Essie Archer.

In honor of Miss Johnston. Mrs. Lawrence Syce, of 2607 Monument Avenue, was the hostess of a very pleasant tea from 4 to 5 Friday afternoon, in honor of Miss Mary Johnston. A drawing room talk by Miss Johnston was the feature of the afternoon. Miss Ade Clark also spoke.

The tea was well attended, and added another to the drawing room gatherings which have taken place so successfully in the interest of the Equal Suffrage League of Virginia.

To Attend Unveiling. Members of the Richmond Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, are invited to attend the ceremonies attending upon the unveiling of a tablet to mark the site of the Robert Hospital, corner of Main and Third Streets, to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The tablet is placed under the direction of the site committee of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society.

Norfolk Dinner Party. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Johnson were guests of honor on Friday evening at dinner given by Conway W. Sams at his home, in Boush Street, Norfolk. The table was arranged with crimson roses and lilacs of the valley, and those present were Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Miss Edna Voight, Miss Emily Johnson, Miss Katherine Dickson, Miss Lucile McLean, Washington Taylor, Mr. Kenney, John and Minton Talbot.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have recently returned from their wedding trip, and spent Thanksgiving with friends in Richmond before returning to Norfolk.

Returned to Richmond. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wingfield Yeaman have returned to the city, and are at home to their friends at 504 East Marshall Street. Mrs. Yeaman was formerly Miss Hattie Isabelle Bladen, daughter of Mrs. Mary Gibson Bladen, of Washington, D. C.

The Christian Church at Crewe, Va., was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday evening of last week, when Miss Edna Elliott, daughter of the bride of William P. Taylor. The interior of the church was decorated in palms, ferns and white flowers, with ropes of Southern smilax and evergreens. Miss Mattie Lee Ellington, of South Richmond, presided at the organ and played "O Believe" during the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. G. W. Phelps, of Lynchburg.

Little Misses Ethel Kelley and Katherine Elliott held the ribbons, and the ushers were John T. Elliott, T. W. Murphy, S. E. Laycock and F. P. News. The bride was attended by Miss Helen G. News, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Elliott and Carrie Snellings as bridesmaids. The groomsmen included Raymond Belcher, G. S. Holland, Early Jones and W. E. Elliott. The bride entered the church with her mother, Mrs. E. F. Thews, of Norfolk.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott entertained the bridal party very handsomely on Tuesday evening after the rehearsal. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left at once for an extended tour of the Southern cities. Guests from a distance attending the wedding were: Misses Mattie Ellington, Hazel Smart, Carrie Snellings, Mrs. Smart, Mrs. A. R. Ellington, Mrs. R. E. Ellington, Mrs. G. W. Smart, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tunstall, Messrs. W. F. Scott and Percy Long, all of South Richmond; Miss Helen Gregory, of Appomattox; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Johnston, of Roanoke; Mr. Wooten, Misses Lessee and Fannie Johnston, of Roanoke.

Meet To-Day. There will be a meeting of the general board of the Sheltering Arms Free Hospital to-day at noon at the hospital. All members are asked to attend this meeting.

Approaching Marriage. Mrs. Edmonia Brown, of Powhatan county, Va., announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Emma Gay, to John B. Winfree, the wedding to be held Wednesday, December 14, in Washington, D. C. Miss Brown is the daughter of the late Captain Matthew Brown and a niece of Judge Richard H. Brown, of California.

U. D. C. Meeting. The regular monthly meeting of the Richmond Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will be held in Lee Camp Hall Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Business of importance is to be transacted, and all members are urged to be present. Visiting daughters are cordially invited to attend.

Attendance. Miss Gellie Macdonald, of this city, was among those present at the dedication of the Holy Cross Academy in Washington last Thursday, and took part in the program. The academy was dedicated by Cardinal Gibbons.

In and Out of Town. Mrs. Harry B. Wayland, of Albemarle county, accompanied by her two young children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Davidson, of 203 West Franklin Street, and will remain throughout the Christmas holidays.

Colonel Joseph E. Willard, who landed in Genoa a few days ago, has joined his family in Paris for the holidays.

Dr. Robert S. Williams has returned to Hot Springs, Va., after spending several days in Richmond.

Miss Mary Pendleton and her nephew, William Dillon, will spend Christmas at Indian Rock, returning to Richmond for the midwinter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Osborne McCabe have moved to 321 North Harrison Street.

Mrs. Mina Henne and her daughter, of Denver, Colorado, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Wallerstein, at 203 South Third Street.

Miss Mary Osborne Templeton has returned to her home in Waynesboro, after a visit to friends in this city.

Miss Ethel Tyler, of Cleveland, Ohio, is the guest of friends in Richmond for several weeks.

The condition of Cadet Charles W.

Goddin, who is ill with typhoid fever, remains unchanged.

Frederick S. Dale, of New York, president of the class of '06 at Amherst College, is visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. Thomas Bolling has returned to the city, after visiting friends in New York and Wilmington, Delaware.

Miss Ellen Meade, who was operated on in St. Luke's Hospital Friday, is somewhat improved.

Mrs. E. D. Beasley has been moved to her home, after an operation at the Virginia Hospital.

W. G. Neal has returned to Richmond, after spending several days with friends in Culpeper, Va.

Miss Emma Handy, of Harrisonburg, arrived in Richmond last week to stay the remainder of the winter with relatives here.

Thomas Howerton, of South Boston, Va., is ill at the Memorial Hospital in this city.

Miss Bruce Goodrick, who has been the guest of relatives in Fredericksburg, has returned to her home in this city.

Mrs. Lucy Overton has returned to Ashland, after a visit to Mrs. Jacob Michaux, on East Franklin Street.

Dr. Isaac Curd, who recently spent a few days in the city, has returned to Gordonsville.

Mrs. Malvern Hill, of this city, is visiting her parents at their home near Culpeper, Va.

S. J. Brooks, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. W. R. Dodson, in Chase City, has returned to Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Wunderlich, who have been traveling extensively in the West, have returned to the city.

Miss Alice Gregory is the guest of Miss Mary Wood, at Emporia, Va., for several days before returning to her home in this city.

Negro Shot by Officers. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Winston-Salem, N. C., December 11.—John Jones, a negro, was shot through both legs and one arm at the Union Passenger Station at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon by Special Officer J. L. Berson of the Southern Railway. The train from Charlotte had just arrived, and while passengers were getting off Jones persisted in his effort to go through the crowd of white people. When the officer pushed the negro back Jones threw one hand to his hip pocket as if he was going to draw a pistol. Mr. Berson drew his gun and shot Jones three times. His condition is serious.

May Restore Plant. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., December 11.—It is believed the meeting of the stockholders of the Thornhill Wagon Works, which was burned out Friday night, to be held Monday morning, will result in a decision to restore the plant.

Among the Books

"Anti-Matrimony"—A Satirical Comedy. By Percy Mackaye. The Frederick A. Stokes Co., of New York. $1.25 net. A brilliant prose comedy produced in New York last spring, with Henrietta Crossman as leading woman.

The play is a wholesome satire on many of the problems presented in continental drama. The scene opens in a Massachusetts family house, and four members of the family, an elder husband and wife and a younger wedded pair, who, in order to support and disassociate what they are pleased to call "The Anti-Matrimony" cult, the old Mr. fashionable people, among whom they desire to be classed, carefully conceal their marriage, which took place while they were abroad in Vienna, and proclaim themselves as ardent disciples of the most advanced free-love theories.

They scandalize their staid New England relatives for awhile. Then began the conflict between the super-men and the women of the present day and their sublimated ideas which brought into conflict with the common sense realities of everyday life. The immense cleverness of the comedy removes from it the slightest suspicion of coarseness. The situations are irresistibly funny, and the whole book scintillates with wit that is mirth-provoking and refreshing to the last degree.

"Mr. Ingleside." By E. V. Lucas. The Macmillan Co., of New York. $1.50.

Mr. Ingleside is the centre of many phases of social and business life in London, where he, a home-loving member of society, with two well-updated young English women as daughters, has his home.

He is shrewdly observant of the doings of people around and about him, and records amusing and mildly caustic comments on the behavior of London, in unobtrusive attitude.

As Mr. Ingleside sees it, London has many sides and phases, and his viewpoints are flavored with just the degree of satire needed and no more. There is a special oyster forming a group of familiars among whom Mr. Ingleside is comfortably at ease and at home. What he has to say about this group is the real core of the book, its true inwardness—that and the moralizing into which he loves to fall when he is musing over London's looks and looking out upon the River Thames.

"The Gift Wife." By Rupert Hughes. Moffat, Yard and Co., of New York. $1.50.

This is the story of an American surgeon, who is a dispendable, and who, while traveling in Europe, awakes to consciousness from a prolonged spell of his disease to find that he has lost touch with a fatherless child, and upon his care, and that he is being nursed in a Turkish harem by a veiled woman.

The woman, besides her sorrowful story to the surgeon and so excites his sympathy that when he leaves to return to Europe, he rescues his nurse and takes her with him. A long search, finally crowned with success, then begins for the lost child.

The book closes with a happy conclusion to the romance between the doctor and his nurse, whose love for him he discovered, and who is called by him in his heart his "Gift Wife."

"The Spread Eagle." By Gouverneur Morris. Charles Scribner's Sons, of New York. $1.50.

A book of short stories by an American author who has the merit of writing about society people and the people at the same time, the value of whose name story in this book is matched by one regarding Christmas which will appeal to every reader. Every one of the stories, indeed, has its individual flavor and its characteristic excellence. The book is as fine as it is entertaining.

"Red Pepper Burns." By Grace S. Richmond. Doubleday, Page & Co., of Garden City, Long Island.

Dr. Redfield Pepper Burns, the hero of Grace Richmond's novel, has red hair and a flaming temper that matches the hair. But he is a thoroughly good man, and when the opportunity is offered he adopts a little boy and is thereby brought into association with a charming young widow, who has had the misfortune to lose her child.

ing young widow, who has had the misfortune to lose her child. "The Green Imp," the doctor's automobile, is an active figure in the story and gives the doctor and sweetheart such happy times that it deserves mention along with the characters.

"The Better Man." By Cyrus Townsend Brady. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

"The Better Man" implies the existence in this book of two men. Besides the men there is a girl with whom both are in love. One man is the finished outcome of the finest American civilization, and the other is simply a crude specimen of American manhood, though self-respecting and independent at heart and in manner.

Fortunately the girl is able to test the two and decide in favor of the right man. The story is told simply and plainly, but with a subtlety and with a delicate romance to render it attractive.

"The Paternoster Ruby." By Charles Edmonds Walk. A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago.

In this story the famous "Paternoster Ruby," which has caused enmity and hatred between two of the best known American financiers in a struggle for its possession, brings about the murder of the man who successfully guarded his rival when the ruby was offered for sale. Suspicion of the murderer falls on the murdered man's nephew, on his secretary and on the man who was his financial opponent. There are many threads to be picked up and followed out, and a double love story is unfolded, before the mystery is satisfactorily cleared up. When this is done the result surprises everybody, of course. And that is what usually happens in a first-class detective novel like "The Paternoster Ruby."

BOOK SUGGESTIONS FOR CHRISTMAS BUYERS

"Colonial Holidays." By Walter Tittle. Doubleday, Page & Co., of Garden City, L. I.

Along with stories of the Colonial holiday times, the illustrations, romances and traditions, Mr. Tittle has here done some beautiful and artistic work in the way of illustration and illumination. The illumination in rich colors and in the latest with a Christmas rendering his work as a whole one of the finest things placed on the holiday market. As a gift book it is most alluring.

"The Lilac Fairy Book." Edited by Andrew Lang. Longmans, Green & Co., New York.

For years Mr. Lang has been gathering together from many lands stories which he has put into a series called "The Rainbow Series." "The Lilac Fairy Book" belongs to this series. It is delightful as to its reading matter and very handsome as to its binding and illustrations.

"Mopha the Fairy." By Jean Ingelow. J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Told with all the charm and beauty of imagination that distinguished as author in whatever of prose and poetry she gave to the world during her long life filled with beneficence and love for humanity.

"Story of the Grail and the Passing of Arthur." Charles Scribner's Sons.

This book, which finishes a series of books forming an Arthurian cycle for young readers on which Howard Pyle has been engaged for some years, contains the stories of Sir Geraint, Sir Galahad, and the passing of the King. The series is remarkable, not alone for its text, but for the work in illustration and decoration into which Mr. Pyle has put an expression and a touch that have come to be typically and finely American.

"A Manual of Spiritual Fortification." Harper & Bros.

Beginning with the thirteenth and fifteenth centuries, and coming down through the best English and American poets, Louise Collier Wilcox has, in these poems, formed a collection which, answering to the needs of her own nature, she has passed on to the possible comfort and help of others.

"The Sleeping Beauty and Other Fairy Tales from the Old French." Retold by A. T. Quiller-Couch. George H. Doran Company, of New York.

Aided by the versatility and delicacy of Mr. Dulac's artistic perceptions and his beautiful picturing of fairyland, with its sprites and quaint figures, Quiller-Couch's "Sleeping Beauty" has taken on a form that will give many an hour of enjoyment to the fortunate reader into whose hands it may pass during the holiday season.

"Peter Pan in Kensington Gardens." By J. M. Barrie. Charles Scribner's Sons.

The elaborate publication of "Peter Pan," pictured by Mr. Rackham, has here been reduced in size and, containing the same valuable illustrations, appears as an attractive feature of the book output for this year. Nothing can be more highly recommended than this publication.

"The Way to Peace." By Margaret Deland. Harper & Bros.

A characteristic book by an author whose name indicates the quality of what may be expected in a gift book over her signature. From Harpers have also come "Tama," by Onoto Watanabe, a delightful Japanese romance decorated in Japanese style, and "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," by Mark Twain, gotten out in red Christmas covers for the benefit of readers partial to Mark Twain's genius translated into humor.

"The Christmas Angel." By Abbie Farwell Brown. Houghton Mifflin Company.

A tender little Christmas idyl with a very real and human life in it, one that cannot fail to be an appropriate gift from a friend desirous of sending holiday suggestions in a little book to a friend.

"A Christmas Mystery." By William J. Locke. John Lane Company.

Filled with the Christmas spirit of love and good will to men and reminding one throughout of the journey of the wise men that ended at the cradle of the Christ, this little book is one of the very best that has been published this season. It is commended to all desiring what is truly commemorative of Christmas hope and faith and desire.

"The Golden Galloon." George H. Doran Company. By Lucas Malet. Lucas Malet has looked deeply into human life and into its hidden romance and disillusion. "The Golden Galloon" is full of pathos, but it is also full of beauty and tenderness, and it is a story that cannot fail to interest all who are its Christmas readers.

"One Christmas Day in the Evening." Doubleday, Page and Company. By Grace S. Richmond. Those who read —the place where you can get any kind of Slipper you may ask for, and at nearly any price from $1.00 up—but when you select from my stock you know you have secured the best Slipper value to be had anywhere for the money, and that's why you should buy Christmas Slippers of me.

Slipperdom

For Men:

Kid Solace$3.50
Willow Cavalier$4.00
Jet Dongola Jumbo...$2.50
Kid Irving$2.50
Kid Opera (dull brown)$3.00
Kid Opera (brown and black).....$2.00
Bath Slippers$1.00
Men's Comfy$1.50

For Ladies:

Black Satin Muhls...$3.00
Ladies' Comfy (brown, red, black, blue)....$1.00
Ladies' Comfy (purple, old rose, lilac, heliotrope).....$1.50
Fur-Lined Nullifiers...$1.00
Boudoir Slippers (all colors).....$1.00
Carriage Shoes (fur lined and trimmed)...$5.00
Children's Comfy's, 75c and.....$1.00

Seymour Syce,

11 West Broad St. Next to J. B. Mosby & Co.

the predecessor of this book, "On Christmas Day in the Morning," will be interested to know that the story of the Fernald family told in the former book, is continued in this Christmas evening service in the old church. As this service is conducted in the real holiday spirit, it results in much happiness and the healing of many disorders.

"Molly Make-Believe." The Century Company. By Eleanor Hallowell Abbott. A love story, not an ordinary one by any means, but a bit of pure joy which any man or woman will be the better for reading. From the same firm has been received "Sonny's Father," by Ruth McEnery Stuart, with fresh anecdotes of the Simpsontonville community, quite as fascinating, as any that have been hitherto printed.

"The Zodiac Birthday Book." Baker Baxter Ruhl. This is a gift book to interest and charm, for from it a woman or a man can find the star under which they are born, the effect of the star on their temperaments and destinies. They can also, to a limited extent, ascertain what danger they should avoid and what pleasure they may enjoy at will, what faults they must set themselves to conquer and what virtues are their natural heritage.

"Mary Ware in Texas." L. C. Page Company, of Boston. By Annie Fellows Johnston. The tenth volume in the famous "Little Colonel" series, this book continues the adventures of Mary Ware to the delight of all girls who have delighted from the beginning in whatever relates to the "Little Colonel," the most popular girlhood heroine in American literature to-day. One of the most interesting and thrilling features of this latest book is the announcement in it that its author, "The Little Colonel" and her friends.

"The Married Life of the Frederick Carrolls." By Jesse Lynch Williams. Charles Scribner's Sons, of New York. $1.50.

Jesse Lynch Williams is chiefly known for stories of newspaper and college life, told with much humor and light satire. His new book, "The Married Life of the Frederick Carrolls"—a novel that begins where most novels end—has just been published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

In this the greatest work that he has put forth—a work similar in qualities of style with earlier writings such as "The Stolen Story," yet far beyond them all in significance—Mr. Williams writes in the spirit of pure comedy, but is concerned with realities. He aims to present the difficulties and disillusionment, of a young married couple; the misconceptions, so unnecessary but for tradition, which give rise to these disillusionments, and, beyond all, the true and sound and serene happiness which finally comes when the first raptures and the later struggles and disillusionments are gone, and a home is established and there are children. He tells his story in a peculiarly intimate, almost indulgent manner, as if he were giving the experience in marriage of two very real and charming friends—very human, withal, both in faults and virtues.

The reader follows the Carrolls through a series of progressive and fairly typical episodes of married life, and as they progress their course becomes clearer, their marriage more of a union, and in showing us this Mr. Williams, still light of touch, has outdone himself under the inspiration of having something really big to say. This is a book that fairly seems to radiate light and cheerfulness.

"Songs for the People." By George Sands Johnson. Broadway Company, of New York.

Mr. Johnson's book of poems contains an autobiographical sketch in which his genealogy is given and his purpose in the publication of his verse mentioned.

The book contains 125 pages and is filled with poems of the imagination, those inspired by a love of nature and others by a love of humanity. In some the note of patriotism is struck and in some the pleasures of a peaceful existence are extolled. If one were called on to make a choice in the collection perhaps it would fall on the poem called "Beyond the Beaten Way."

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

which is full of the philosophy of right sentiment and fine imagery.

"Memoirs of the War of Secession." By Johnson Hagood. The State Company, Columbia, S. C.

The author of these memoirs was a brigadier-general in the service of the Confederacy, afterward comptroller-general and Governor of South Carolina and, for many years, chairman of the board of visitors in charge of the State Military Academy. He died January 4, 1891.

In the introduction to his book he states the object of his preparing his memoirs in saying: "It is known that at the close of the War of Secession, the archives of the Confederate War Department fell into the hands of the United States government, and that Lieber, a renegade Southerner, was employed to arrange them. In all human probability, under the manipulation to which they have been and will be subjected, when the future historians obtain access to them—

"The very mother that them bore. If she should be in presence, there, she will not know her child."

A portrait of General Johnson serves as a frontispiece to his book. His memoirs begin with April 12, 1861, when he was ordered to report with his regiment—the First South Carolina—to Charleston, and thence to Morris Island. As a private in the Palmetto Guard, he fought at the battle of Bull Run and Manassas Plains, and later, on the assembling of his regiment at Summerville, he returned from Virginia and resumed command of it. He was assigned to the command of posts on the Stono, with headquarters on Coles Island, when his regiment re-enlisted, and was unanimously re-elected colonel.

Afterward he was appointed to the provost-marshalship of Charleston, put in command of a temporary brigade, promoted to the rank of brigadier-general, was assigned to the command of James Island district, and was ordered to reinforce Morris Island. Was commended for ability and gallantry in General Beauregard's official report.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

It will form a valuable addition to the records that will enable the historian of the future to be fair, just and accurate.

General Hagood's memoirs are taken from original manuscripts and are edited by U. R. Brooks. They embody the experience of a commander who, serving as already indicated, was in a position to see and know much of the War of Secession in the South, especially, that has not yet been told. Rosters of his command, the narration of personal incidents with history and a very complete index render his book very complete.

Dunlop Flour

You Will Like it in Your Home

the flour that makes baking day pleasant and satisfactory. For best results Insist on Dunlop.

Made in Richmond.

Used for Generations.

Sold on 4 Continents.

The Dunlop Mills, Richmond, Va.

J. B. Mosby & Co.